

How we keep your competition FAIR AND HONEST

This information is for young people aged 13 to 17 years old. It helps you understand the Western Australian Institute of Sport's (WAIS) Competition Manipulation and Sport Gambling Policy.

Sport should be an honest contest, which follows rules to determine a fair outcome – win, loss or tie. The Competition Manipulation and Sport Gambling Policy sets out the rules to stop people trying to dishonestly change the result of a sporting competition, or certain parts of it, for the wrong reasons. The Policy also sets out rules around betting in sport and reporting suspicious behaviour.

The rules of the Policy apply to everyone involved in WAIS, including athletes, officials, coaches, managers, staff, volunteers, and parents. They explain how everyone in WAIS should behave when it comes to gambling in their sport or dishonestly changing sporting outcomes.

The rules exist to keep sport fair and honest for everyone.

What is sports gambling?

Sports gambling is when people bet money, or other goods, on a sporting event in the hope of winning money.

What does competition manipulation mean?

Sometimes people will try to "fix" a sporting competition (or part of it) to ensure they get the result they want, in the hope of making money on gambling, or for some other benefit such as getting a better draw in a tournament.

They might do this by not trying their best, losing points on purpose, or letting their opponent win. This is called competition manipulation, or match-fixing. Competition manipulation is not only against the rules of your sport, it can also be illegal.

What are you not allowed to do?

Athletes, employees or other relevant person in WAIS are not allowed to:

- Lose an event or competition on purpose to win money by gambling (for themselves or for someone else), or for any other benefit.
- Change the natural course of a competition for money or other benefit (for example, giving away a penalty on purpose).
- Bet on any sporting event they are connected with - whether directly connected (like an event they are competing in) or indirectly connected (another match in the same competition that they compete in or another event at a state championships they are competing at).
- Give away inside information – this means you cannot tell people information about a future sporting event which is not already public (such as changes in positions, injuries, or line ups for future games). This is because this information might give an advantage to someone placing a bet on your competition if they have more information than the rest of the public.
- Engage with people who are trying to fix a competition. Knowingly talking to match fixers, and/or failing to report any suspicious activities that may be competition manipulation could break a rule in this policy.

Why do these rules matter?

One of the best parts of sport is that there are no guarantees. Before a competition starts, you never really know who will win or lose, or what might happen during a game or race. Competition Manipulation is bad because it removes that uncertainty. This can affect fans, and the reputation of athletes, officials, and the sport. These rules aim to keep sport unpredictable and fun, by deterring people from manipulating competitions and banning those who do.

Many Australians also like to bet on sport. When there is a chance for people to make money, there is the possibility people will try to fix a competition to increase their chances of winning. This means that people who participate in sport, like you, are at risk of being approached to change the result or provide information that other people betting on a competition don't have. These rules protect you and your competition and keep sport safe and honest.

What should you do if you think someone might be trying to fix a competition or might be betting on your sport?

The rules say that everyone in WAIS must report any suspicious activity that might be breaking the competition manipulation or sports wagering rules.

If you see suspicious behaviour you should talk to an adult you trust. They, or you, can report it to the WAIS Integrity and Safeguarding Manager at integrity@wais.org.au.

What can you do if you feel unsafe?

If you, or anyone under the age of 18, is feeling unsafe about anything to do with betting, gambling, competition manipulation, or any other issue in your sport organisation, you are protected by the Safeguarding Children and Young People Policy. This is a policy especially created for you.

The Safeguarding Children and Young People Policy says that adults who work or volunteer at your sport organisation have a responsibility to support and help you. They must listen to you, hear what you say and do something to stop anything bad from happening to you.

If you feel really upset about something that has happened to you, or if you need help to make it stop, you should speak to someone you trust. This can be a family member, or an adult you trust in your sport organisation.
